From the President:

There’s nothing more uplifting than being at the Conservatory on a busy afternoon, with music flowing from every studio and students of all ages finding inspiration, making friends and celebrating their achievements. Close to 3000 students come to our buildings in Hingham and Duxbury for arts education. But did you know that the Conservatory brought music education to an additional 2000 students this year, through our outreach programs in Hull, Randolph and Brockton? Some of these students are preschoolers in our JumpstartArts program that develops pre-literacy skills through music, movement and drama. Others are K-12 students who attended performances and workshops with Conservatory faculty in our Artists-in-Residency program.

The arts offer opportunities for enrichment and learning for everyone, regardless of age, interests or limitations. Expanding access through outreach, financial aid and creative arts therapies is central to our mission. Just as important is our commitment to presenting outstanding musicians in performance for our students who participate in our Creative Arts Therapies programs. The design also features a miniature amphitheater that can function as both a venue for performances and as an outdoor classroom.

A SAFE AND FUN PLACE TO PLAY

Something exciting is happening at South Shore Conservatory’s Virginia M. Bell Playground. Parents, neighbors and friends of the Conservatory have come together to design an inclusive and eco-friendly new playground for children ages 2-12.

Since its installation 18 years ago, the current playground equipment has been moved three times and loved by thousands of students and neighbors. Until now, we’ve been able to sand away splinters, replace swings and apply a fresh coat of paint, but the time has come to replace the playground.

Our Playground Committee, made up of dedicated parents and neighbors, has teamed with Childscapes to design a new playground that will benefit Conservatory students and neighbors for years to come. The creativity and arts education so critical to everything that the Conservatory does extends into the new playground. Plans call for several outdoor musical instruments that suit all children and are particularly exciting for those students who participate in our Creative Arts Therapies programs. The design also features a miniature amphitheater that can function as both a venue for performances and as an outdoor classroom.

One of the features of the playground will be named in honor of Margaret Curtis, who is retiring after twenty-four years as a preschool teacher.

A large green space that is currently underused will be enclosed to encourage free play, and additional seating for adults will be added. Scheduled for construction in the summer of 2013, the new playground will be accessible to students of all abilities, and composed almost exclusively of recycled materials. Local contractors have been quite generous to the project.

Jay Malouf of Specialized Rigging and Tree Care cleared diseased trees and removed scrub to allow for expansion. John Riley of F. Riley Construction and Dave Margetts of E.L. Margetts & Sons will help prepare the site for construction and create a better drainage system.

IMMERSE YOUR CHILD IN THE ARTS THIS SUMMER!

Eric Lane Shares His Talents in Afghanistan and in Hull

While many teachers were enjoying a quiet winter break at home with their families, piano instructor Eric Lane was hopping a plane to a distant land where playing or listening to music was once outlawed. Eric was one of 27 American teachers who participated in an eight-week intensive residency program at The Afghanistan National Institute of Music’s 3rd Annual Winter Academy. This program offers Afghans, ages 10 to 30, the opportunity to improve their musical abilities in a country where music has long been banned. Eric’s inspiration came from fellow educators supporting the cause, and his own growing passion to be a model advocate for music as an art form. Former SSC educator Eden MacAdam-Somer had previously served in the same program, and in sharing stories from her experience, convinced him to make the pilgrimage.

“Those kids are so wonderfully appreciative, respectful, inquisitive, prideful, and brave,” says Eric. “It’s truly amazing that anyone would be denied access to music. Here, music is my life’s passion, to me, a universal, core, human necessity. I’m integrally compelled to make a difference for these kids.”

“I’m integrally compelled to make a difference for these kids.”

Through the Conservatory’s Community Partnership program, Eric has the opportunity to do just that in the Hull school system. This new program has increased the Conservatory’s outreach commitment as arts advocates, and provides access to quality arts education for students from low-income communities; students with special needs; and in support of public school music programs throughout the region. Artists-in-Residency programs are currently in place and enthusiastically supported in Randolph, Hull and Brockton school communities.

SSC President Kathy Czerny speaks very highly of Eric and the excellence and creativity that he brings to his teaching.

“We are excited to be able to bring some of what Eric gained from working with these amazing Afghan kids who are passionate about their music despite incredible hardship, to our community partnership and outreach programs. There are students here on the South Shore who are equally talented and eager for the chance to learn, express themselves and develop their talent. They are just waiting for someone like Eric to come along and open that door.”

ZILDKJIAN TIMPANI UNVEILED IN PERCUSSION CONCERT

Ed Sorrentino and Ted Sajdyk perform Dialogue for Snare Drum and Timpani

Ed Sorrentino and the Percussion Department gave a special concert on April 7 to showcase the shiny new set of hand-hammered copper timpani, generously donated to the Conservatory by the Zildjian Company. In her remarks to the audience, Debbie Zildjian, Vice President of Zildjian, congratulated Ed for his 35 years as a teacher at the Conservatory. She acknowledged the many ways that Ed and the Conservatory have collaborated with the Zildjian Company to promote music education on the South Shore. Kathy Czerny thanked Debbie for the Zildjian Company’s wonderful gift of timpani, their past contributions to name the percussion studios in Hingham and Duxbury and their ongoing support. The concert also honored the many donors to the Ed Sorrentino Anniversary Fund, whose gifts made it possible to purchase a Vibraphone.

Featured performers included Conservatory faculty members Ed Sorrentino, Ted Sajdyk, Philip Trembley, percussion, Chris Rathbun, bass, and Erik Caldarone, guitar; Conservatory staff member Stephanie Trembley, flute; Conservatory student Chris Robotham, percussion; and members of the Student Percussion Ensemble, Will Edmundson, Sean Rose, Dan McAllifile, Ben Murphy, Jeff von Loesecke and Tyler Manley.

AUDITIONS FOR PURE TREBLE/PURE HARMONY

We recently had an opportunity to speak with some of our Pure Treble (grades 2-5) and Pure Harmony (grades 6-9) students about their experiences with the choral programs, and they had the following to say:

“I have been in Pure Harmony for the past two years, where I have made many new friends, have become more self-assured, and have increased my vocal range… As I stepped onto the stage at my Pure Harmony chorus concert on March 25, and belted out the first solo of my chorus experience, On My Own, from Les Miserables, all of the memories from the past years of chorus came flooding back. If I had never auditioned for a treble chorus, what would my life be like now? … Would I have discovered my voice or would I still be the shy girl that did not talk to anyone?”

Emma Cate Rapose, Pure Harmony

“My favorite memories from Pure Treble are singing rounds, doing rehearsals on the bleachers, and doing fun vocal warm-ups. It is really fun to work with Mrs. McMinn. She explains things in an easy and fun way to understand, and she isn’t strict at all, she is super nice! I really like working with other kids because I get to meet new friends!”

Sofia Clifford, Pure Treble

“We laugh a lot while practicing our songs and have done a lot of fun shows. Mrs. McMinn makes me feel comfortable in a chorus because we’re in it for the music. She is upbeat and fun. Because of our common music level, we can blend our voices well. It is also fun to make new friends and laugh with them.”

Peter Morgan, Pure Harmony

Bay Youth Symphony (BaYS) will offer two full high quality ensembles for the 2013/2014 season. Based on their audition, students will be placed in either Symphony or Repertory.

Friday, May 17
4:00 - 8:00 pm, Hingham

Saturday, May 18
10:00 am - 2:00 pm, Duxbury

Wednesday, June 19
4:30-7:30 pm, Hingham.

Students interested in auditioning should contact Candace Kniffen at c.kniffen@sscmusic.org. Those who cannot make one of the two scheduled audition dates may call for an alternate date and time.

preschoolers and kindergarteners in Hull and Brockton are singing their way toward an early love of reading this year. Through a new partnership with South Shore Conservatory, arts specialists Emily Arsenault, Holly Marshall and Jennie Mulqueen visit the Lillian Jacobs School in Hull and the Adult Learning Center Preschool in Brockton, bringing stories to life through music, movement, dramatic improvisation, and instrument play.

“With an arts curriculum we are able to engage students as the well-rounded individuals they are,” says Holly Marshall. “In my classroom, students have the freedom to sing, move, and play. This means they can answer a simple question with a sound, sung response, or movement. When learning new vocabulary, such as the word ‘hail,’ students are able to tell me what hail is and also how it feels, sounds, and looks. They're getting a fuller experience and therefore a deeper understanding of key vocabulary and story concepts.”

The Conservatory’s cutting-edge program, called jumpstARTS, capitalizes on children’s easy engagement in the arts to support academic skill development and create a love of reading. It allows all children, regardless of age, ability level or previous musical experiences, to engage with material in a playful, nurturing way. The multi-sensory nature of these sessions is designed to give students numerous opportunities to be successful and connect with the material, regardless of their present level of literacy learning.

In addition to weekly music classes, Conservatory faculty instrumentalists visit the schools once a month. Visiting Musicians use performance, movement and picture books to introduce their instruments. Children have learned about the bassoon, the French horn and the viola as well as the trombone and saxophone. “I have been lucky to be a parent volunteer during the music classes in my son’s kindergarten,” said Jennifer Whelan. “As a parent, it is such a joy to see the children being exposed to such a variety of music ranging from classical to reggae and really enjoying it!”

In addition to class-based activities, jumpstARTS provides opportunities for students to share the fun with their parents after school and at home. Families are supplied with music CDs and copies of picture books that are part of the curriculum. South Shore Conservatory also gives tickets for each child to attend a summer family concert at the outdoor Carr Amphitheater on its Hingham campus. According to Jean Penta, Principal of the Jacobs school, “This partnership has enriched the quality of the whole year for our students.”

The jumpstARTS program was created by the Conservatory to further its mission of providing access to quality education in the arts. Through its Community Partnerships Department, the Conservatory creates programs to reach out to schools and organizations that serve individuals with specific needs that can be creatively and successfully addressed through the arts. The schools in Hull and Brockton were chosen as pilot locations for the jumpstARTS partnership because of the enthusiasm of school faculty and administrators to work with SSC to address specific needs within the schools.

This partnership is funded by grants from the Wallace Leonard Foundation and the Eric Oddleifson Legacy Fund as well as the Hull Cultural Council and the Hull Academic Support Coalition. ARTISTS-IN-RESIDENCY SERIES ENHANCES RANDOLPH PUBLIC SCHOOLS GROWING MUSIC PROGRAMS

This year South Shore Conservatory brought an artists-in-residency program entitled “Symphony in the Schools” to the Randolph public schools. The program included three 1-week residencies featuring members of SSC Brass, Woodwind and Percussion Departments. It included 73 in-school performances for students K-12, five in-school master class sessions and three evening concerts for the community. It engaged over 1,600 students.

Eric Laprade, Chair of the Randolph Public Schools Music Department, has worked aggressively to identify funding for “Symphony in the Schools” and to see the program into fruition. With help from the Conservatory’s development staff, Laprade obtained grants from the Randolph PTO Council, The Randolph Education Fund, MMEA Future Symphony Hall Scholars, the Bank of Canton and Randolph Savings Bank.

“The partnership between South Shore Conservatory and the Randolph Public Schools has had a tremendous impact on the students of Randolph,” said Laprade. “We have raised the level of musicianship and appreciation for the arts in the schools. Most important, our students are excited about making music. It is my hope that this partnership will become a model for other school districts as we all share the common goal of providing students with the highest quality education possible.”

“One of the main goals of the ‘Symphony in the Schools’ program is to build a culture of high level music making in the town of Randolph,” explains Laprade. “If we expect our children to make music at a high level, then we have a responsibility to expose them to musical experiences of the highest quality. Community and family investment in the arts is crucial to seeing our students succeed and flourish. The community concert that concludes each residency is a way for students, families, faculty, and community members to experience the joy that arises out of music making.”

South Shore Conservatory’s teen service organization, the SSC CREW, wrapped up a successful year with their “Used Instrument Drive”, on April 27 and 28. We collected over a dozen gently used band instruments to donate to the Randolph Music Department.

The SSC CREW is a group of high school-aged SSC students from all over the South Shore who are interested in improving arts education through community service and music-related activities. We meet once a month to discuss projects and help out locally at SSC performances and events. Our main focus this year was to make music opportunities a reality for our neighbors in Randolph.

Budget cuts have seriously affected the Randolph Public School District music program over the last decade. Yet, through the concerted efforts of administrators and music teachers, Randolph has just been recognized as one of the best communities in the country for arts education.

The Conservatory is pleased to welcome Mary Ellen and Peter Lawrence to the Encore Society, which was launched in 2008 to recognize people who have included the Conservatory in their estate plans. The Lawrences have chosen to make a planned gift to provide endowed support for the Conservatory’s growing outreach initiatives.

“Providing access to education and the arts through outreach programs is very dear to our hearts,” Peter commented. “By providing an endowed Outreach Fund we hope these life-changing access experiences will allow the Conservatory to continue their mission for future generations.”

The Playground Committee has worked hard to engage their fellow parents and ensure that everyone had the opportunity to weigh in on the design. They hosted an Open House in February to unveil the designs and answer any questions, and spoke with neighbors. They also spent countless hours organizing the Conservatory’s first Rhythm Run 5K and Fun Run on May 18th with proceeds to benefit the Playground Project.

The plans are in place, but we need your help to make them a reality. The cost of this essential project is about $87,000, including site work, fencing, security measures and new equipment. We ask that you consider joining our growing list of Playground Supporters by making a gift to the Playground Project to give our children a safe place to play. Please contact Eileen Puzo at e.puzo@sscmusic.org or 781-749-7565 ext. 30 to make a donation or for more information.
Veljko Petrickovic, Erin Coffey, Cecilia Yudin and Elizabeth Bouchard made up the Boston University marketing consulting team whose project this semester was to research and provide guidance for marketing the Conservatory’s Summer Spotlight series, formerly known as Evenings Under the Stars, in the Jane Carr Amphitheater in Hingham. We are very grateful for their valuable advice!

The Conservatory hosted its annual student performance marathon on April 5th and 6th, at the Barnes & Noble at Derby Street Shoppes, and it was another record breaking year! Shoppers and Conservatory friends enjoyed the performances of nearly 250 students who collectively raised over $15,000 in sponsorships and had an additional $13,000 matched by generous Conservatory Trustees. Additionally, Barnes & Noble donated over $2,500 back to the Conservatory from increased store sales. All Performathon proceeds benefit scholarships and financial aid. Bravo and Brava to all performers!
